“ My brother Art was one who rushed home from elementary school to try and be the first to teach me to walk when I was a baby. His teacher helped him realize that having a sister was a good thing because she would grow to take over his duties as a dishwasher in the family household. He loved to embarrass me throwing me over his shoulder singing Alexander’s Ragtime band. He was my driving buddy and conversationalist when we worked together at the VA. Wish we could have had more family times together in recent years. Rest peacefully my brother. Love, your sister Edie
