“ Today has arrived and I must say my final goodbye. I never really pictured this day coming even tho it's part of life. I'm grateful I made it to speak to you before you left this world. You didn't just have a hand in raising my brothers and I, but my sons as well. Although we referenced you as Aunt Patty, we were your children as you never had any of your own and we spent the most time with you than anyone else. You had a heart of gold. I have a lifetime of memories to cherish. I'll miss annoying you by getting on your bed next to you, messing you up while you worked crossword puzzles or made you lose your page while you read one of your books probably for the 5th time 😂. I'll miss playing games such as Phase 10 or Scrabble and laughing as you would get mad as hell if you lost. I think I always laughed when you got mad and popped your stuff unless it was us arguing. I really miss how you cared for me as a child and an adult when I was sick or had surgery. I loved when you made chili when I asked just because I liked how you made it even though I could do it myself. Thank you for everything you did in this life. Some family we are born with and other family we choose. You chose Robert, Travis, Mook, Dunk, Woosie, Lo and me and we chose YOU! Thank you for being you and loving us. You are loved and missed. I will always think of you! 🤔😘😭😭
